LAKE WOBEGON STRIKES A CHORD

As a fan of Garrison Keillor's "A Prairie Home Companion," I can't tell you how happy I was to see "A Prairie Home Companion: Lake Wobegon Comes to Disney." I've always thought Keillor's wit and warmth were ideal for The Channel, and I thank you for providing such a treat. With all the hoopla over this Fourth of July, it was wonderful to sit back and watch a true tribute to the joys of American life.

"TOO SMART FOR STRANGERS" RETURNS

I do hope you are planning on repeating the program "Too Smart For Strangers." My two small grandsons really enjoyed it and would like to see it again. It is the type of program that children need to watch and is so good for them. I'm sure there are a lot of mothers who would like to see this show repeated.

"Too Smart For Strangers" enjoys an encore presentation on The Disney Channel beginning September 16 at 8:00 p.m. (EDT/PDT).

IMPROVING IMAGINATIONS

I am writing to tell you that as a parent I'm very pleased with The Disney Channel. Since we began subscribing last October, we have noticed a marked improvement in the imaginations of our three elementary school-aged children. Their creativity has increased by leaps and bounds.

I am also particularly pleased with "Find It in the Library," found in the "Just for Kids" section of "The Disney Channel Magazine." My children have become willing readers now that they can read the story that inspired their favorite feature films. Their favorites to date have been "The Secret of NIMH," "Bedknobs and Broomsticks," and the corresponding books.

I owe a great debt of gratitude to The Disney Channel for helping to expose my children to the world of reading and the power of the imagination. The Disney tradition of excellence continues on.

WHAT IS "TOAD-IN-THE-HOLE"?

My family adored "Bedknobs and Broomsticks." I must admit, however, that my four- and nine-year-olds have stumped me with a question from the film. It concerns the favorite foods of the Rawlings. What on earth are sausage and mash, bubble and squeak, and toad-in-the-hole? Help!

Kathy Hall
Kewanee, IL

They're all traditional English dishes. Sausage and mash are sausages—generally known as "bangers"—and mashed potatoes. Bubble and squeak is a dish consisting of cabbage, potatoes and sometimes meat fried together. And toad in the hole is a sausage encased in a batter that resembles Yorkshire pudding.

"RUNNING BRAVE" DISAPPOINTS

I would like to commend you for the programs you air on The Disney Channel. I have not been disappointed in my choice in purchasing it. However, on June 30 at 9:00 p.m. I was watching "Running Brave" and had to turn it off. Twenty to 30 minutes into the show it featured a shower scene (which is not bad), but then it had to go and show the main actors' buttocks. That in itself was not that bad, but I didn't expect it on The Disney Channel. In the summer, 9:00 p.m. is not too late for children to be staying up to watch a one hour and 46 minute program.

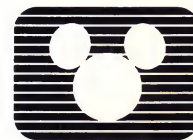

I am very disappointed; I hope you will be more selective in the movies you choose to present on The Disney Channel. I chose to purchase The Disney Channel as an alternative to the garbage on regular TV. Thank you for taking this matter seriously.

Roberta Granacha
Fremont, CA

Though "Running Brave" does contain brief nudity, the film's tone is upbeat and inspirational, chronicling Billy Mill's struggle—and triumph—over poverty and hardship in realizing his Olympic dreams.

Pinocchio

Animation On A Grand Scale

Pinocchio," released in 1940, cost $2.6 million, a kingly sum for that time but a small price for a masterpiece. Frank Thomas, an animation director on the film, remembers the enthusiasm that went into its creation.

"We all had a dedication for 'Pinocchio,' a feeling of purpose that partly grew out of the Depression and partly out of our pre-war innocence and sort of Boy Scout attitude. It was the perfect combination for such a picture."

Walt Disney's captivating animated classic, which makes its world television premiere on The Disney Channel September 20, reigns as a triumph of technical brilliance. "Pinocchio" owes a share of its beauty, opulence and realism to models and special effects that were developed during filming. Bob Jones, who worked with Frank Thomas and who is, at 73, the only surviving puppet master of the 1930s, remembers his role in the creation of Pinocchio and other characters in the film.

"At least 12 Disney artists struggled for 18 months trying to come up with just the right look for Pinocchio. When the design of the lovable little puppet-boy was finally approved, Walt decided to form a Character Model Department, staffed by specialists who could make three-dimensional figures of drawing board characters. I was one of the three Walt chose for the job.

"At first our work was centered on Pinocchio, but it soon spread to all the new characters and to scenic props, such as the unusual furniture, tools, toys, clocks, and other items in Geppetto's workshop.

"The figures, some fashioned from clay,

THE REJECTED PINOGGHIO

One of the first models of Pinocchio was an angular, stick-like figure carved by puppeteer Bob Jones. He was not the endearing Pinocchio we see in the film.

"But that's how Pinocchio looked when we began drawing him in 1937," says Frank Thomas, an animation director on the film. "He was a smart-aleck with a long, thin nose, and he looked very wooden. After about six months Walt Disney said, 'There's no heart or warmth in the story, and the character is not coming off.'"

"So the writers went back and re-did the story. They changed Pinocchio into a softer, likable, innocent little boy. That, of course, threw everything we'd done before out the window. They dumped our old model of Pinocchio. I thought, 'Oh, gee, I've spent a lot of hours with this guy. I'll take him home and save him from the ash pile!'" says Thomas.

So Thomas stored the model in a closet, where it stayed until he returned it to the Disney Studio years later. Meanwhile the more innocent—and endearing—Pinocchio went on to become a star. ♡ some from wood, and some from reinforced plaster, were painted to match the animator's drawings. Artists could turn them and see at a glance how the subjects would look from such an angle.

"We found that the animators had all sorts of mechanical problems. How do you animate smoke with a pencil? How do you animate heavy things like wagons and stagecoaches? Ken Anderson, one of the art directors, came to me and said, 'I'm supposed to animate Stromboli's gypsy wagon going over a bumpy road and it comes off looking like a bowl of Jell-O. We can't put that on the screen.' So I made a model of the gypsy wagon and loaded it down with 40 pounds of lead. The girls painted it, and I made a treadmill with bumps on it for the bumpy road. We shot the action on film, and the artists were able to create the scene realistically."

("The models were beautifully done and a great help to the artists," animation director Frank Thomas agrees. "Unfortunately, they were so good that Walt started giving some away to VIP's as souvenirs. Others became permanent decorations in the offices of the top personnel. The rest had a way of disappearing, especially as we neared the end of the picture." Today those models are prized collectibles, worth hundreds of dollars each.)

Invention was the order of the day. "Everything we did was innovative," says Bob Jones. Live-action rain was incorporated into one sequence. A scene of a steamer heading for Pleasure Island was made by pulling a transparent cel, on which the boat was painted, across a background, with smoke effects trailing behind it and distortion glass over the water. It was so impressive that preview audiences gave the scene a round of applause.

The Character Model Department went on to create models and three-dimensional special effects for "Bambi," "Fantasia" and many short subjects before it was disbanded in economy moves brought on by the Second World War. Meanwhile "Pinocchio" opened, and was promptly proclaimed Walt Disney's masterpiece.

Historian Christopher Finch echoed the opinion of movie lovers and critics over the years when he said, "'Snow White' may have provided Disney with his finest moment, but 'Pinocchio' is probably his greatest film." ♡

WALT DISNEY WORLD'S 15TH ANNIVERSARY GALA Celebration

It will be a star-studded weekend filled with magic, color, pageantry and just plain fun as Walt Disney World in Florida celebrates the 200th anniversary of the signing of the United States Constitution and begins Walt Disney World's year-long 15th birthday. This gala event provides the perfect launch for the bicentennial celebration of the American system of government. President Reagan is scheduled to attend the festivities. Former Chief Justice Warren Burger will speak. Many celebrities and Disney stars are scheduled to be on hand. In honor of the occasion, Disney Channel camera crews will be there on all three of the celebration days, from October 3 to October 5, roaming Walt Disney World to bring subscribers periodic live glimpses of the activities. It's an exclusive selection of colorful and patriotic moments.

On Saturday, October 4, two very special programs showcasing Walt Disney World premiere on The Disney Channel. First The Disney Channel's special salute to Walt Disney World's 15th birthday begins at 5:00 p.m. (EDT/PDT) with "Magic Kingdom Celebration—Live!" The concert in front of Cinderella Castle in Walt Disney World will feature The Disney Channel's newest and brightest stars, including The Lovin' Spoonful's multi-talented John Sebastian, star of an upcoming Channel special, "What a Day for a Daydream." Also featured are the young performers of "Kids Incorporated," a series coming soon to The Disney Channel.

Then, later that evening at 7:00 p.m. (EDT/PDT) "Walt Disney World: A Dream Come True" looks at the past, present, and future of Walt Disney World. (This program may be pre-empted by live coverage of President Reagan's remarks.) The exciting, 75-minute special looks at the park's origins, the stellar attractions that have made it a landmark in entertainment, and a behind-the-scenes preview of its future. You'll take a look at the plans for the Disney/MGM Studio Tour, an actual tour of a working film and television studio. And you'll hear of the construction that's about to begin on Pleasure Island.

"Walt Disney World: A Dream Come True" begins with the pioneering vision of Walt Disney. Though he first conceived of Walt Disney World as a theme park modeled on Disneyland, Disney's concept soon grew into a dream of a park that would not only provide the ultimate in entertainment, education, and relaxation, but would also embody the technology of the future. Though Walt Disney did not live to see his vision realized, that dream did come true on October 1, 1971.

The reaction was immediate: Walt Disney World was the most-talked-about resort in the world, a Magic Kingdom that was hailed as the eighth wonder of the world. Guests flocked to Walt Disney World, drawn, as Walt Disney predicted, not only by The Magic Kingdom but also by golf courses, hotels, campgrounds, and a stunning network of land and water transportation that wove through the park.

But the Walt Disney World story doesn't end there. In 1982, another portion of Disney's inspiring vision was realized with the dedication of EPCOT Center. EPCOT—the Experimental Prototype Community of Tomorrow—is today an international showcase for the technology of the future as well as a unique forum promoting cooperation and understanding among all human beings. In Future World, bold attractions like Spaceship Earth, Universe of Energy, World of Motion, Journey into Imagination, The Land, Computer Central, Horizon, and the newly-opened Living Seas present ideas and systems that may one day enhance people's lives everywhere. In World Showcase, the pavilions of 11 nations offer guests an amazing sample of the world's different cultures, painting a portrait of what our planet could be like if we relied only on understanding, cooperation, and a better knowledge of each other.

There have been many other milestones that mark Walt Disney World's 15 years. Over 200 million guests have journeyed from places all over the globe to visit the park. Today average annual attendance stands at over 21 million. Among those visitors have been four American presidents, as well as dignitaries, heads of state and a galaxy of show business celebrities ranging from Burt Reynolds to Vincent Price to Michael Jackson, star of the new 3-D musical space fantasy "Captain EO" (which premieres at both Walt Disney World and Disneyland on September 19).

As part of the gala anniversary celebration, The Disney Channel is also sponsoring a 15th Birthday Sweepstakes. The sweepstakes runs for over four months, with 15 lucky winners receiving all expenses paid vacations to Walt Disney World (see page 14 for full details). Beginning October 29, a new winner will be announced each Wednesday between "The Edison Twins" and "Danger Bay." Each Wednesday's announcement will be repeated on Friday following "Five Mile Creek."

It's been a grand and glorious 15 years. The future is filled with the same promise, as major new attractions like Pleasure Island and the Disney/MGM Studio Tour are completed and other innovative attractions are added. But on the weekend of October 3 through 5, all eyes will be focused on Florida for the gala celebrations that mark the 200th birthday of America's Constitution and the 15th birthday of Walt Disney World. And The Disney Channel will be there, offering a dazzling range of exclusive entertainment to celebrate this historic occasion. 🐻

Reading is fun for Sarah—as it should be for every child. At age four-and-a-half, she's already choosing her own books at the San Diego, Cal. library.

She reads books many third graders find "hard going." Yet she won't enter first grade for another year.

Sarah is typical of thousands of children who learned to read with "Listen and Learn with Phonics"—a reading kit that actually makes reading fun.

"Listen and Learn with Phonics" was developed by a reading expert. It has been endorsed, after extensive testing, by teachers, schools, and educators.

This practical (and inexpensive) home-learning kit fascinating eager young minds from three to ten. The child hears the letters or sounds on a cassette, sees them in a book and then repeats them. This makes an absorbing game of better reading — with amazing results!

For example: Slow or average readers show sudden—often spectacular—improvement in reading and spelling. Older children often advance their reading skills several years beyond their age level. Young "pre-schoolers" actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective method.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

Mike the Dog's acting career has proved to be the classic overnight success story. In the months since his feature film debut, he's shot to the heights of Hollywood stardom. Producers consider him a high-powered talent who can make or break a movie, a performer in the same league as Lassie, Rin Tin Tin, and Benji. Mike the Dog has even made numerous talk show appearances, including NBC's late night series "The David Letterman Show."

Now subscribers of The Disney Channel can watch Hollywood's latest wonder dog in The Disney Channel Premiere Film "Spot Marks the X." This canine comedy caper, made especially for The Disney Channel, premieres Saturday, October 18 at 9:00 p.m. (EDT/PDT).

Mike the Dog plays Capone, a larcenous pooch. His owner is Ross, a notorious bank robber. When Ross and his two henchmen Bevis and Elvis pull a heist, Capone's in on the action.

The bumbling gang soon find themselves pursued by the police. In the heat of the chase, Ross is struck by a brainstorm: bury the sacks of money in such a way that only Capone will be able to retrieve the loot.

But like all great plans this one goes awry when Ross and Capone are captured. Ross goes to jail to await trial, and Capone goes to a holding tank in the city dog pound. There's just one problem. A fumbling dog pound attendant moves the mutt into the adoption pen, where he's promptly adopted by a young boy named Ken (Barret Oliver).

MIKE THE DOG

Hollywood's Latest Canine Star Sleuths His Way to the Top in a Disney Channel Premiere Film

Ken and his friend Kathy discover Capone's—now renamed Astro—criminal past when the dog commences to pick pockets in a park. As Capone tries to go straight for Ken and Kathy, a wild and wacky chase begins that involves Ross, his partners, the dog pound attendant, and the two kids.

But just how good an actor is this new canine star? Clint Rowe, who trained the winsome dog (and who also trained Jed, the wolf-hybrid in Disney's "The Journey of Natty Gann") believes that "Mike's appeal to the audience is his emotional accessibility. I think when people see him they think he's kind of an odd type of dog. But he's the kind of dog you might have had as a kid."

Mike the Dog's big career break came when he was cast as Matisse in the hit movie "Down and Out in Beverly Hills." Mike also had an earlier role in an episode of The Disney Channel's exclusive series "Danger Bay." A special encore presentation of that episode, "Wharf Rat," will air on The Disney Channel beginning Wednesday, October 22 at 8:30 p.m. (EDT/PDT).

Currently in the works for Mike the Dog are another feature film and an upcoming series for network TV. As Clint Rowe observes about his protege, "The minute Mike gets in the studio, he's relaxed. That's home. Mike knows the people and he's familiar with the bright lights. He's good at acting." 🐕

Disney Channel DISCOVERY

Juan Gonzalez, who portrays Frankie, a young Indian boy, shares a tender moment with his magnificent stallion in "The Red Fury," the first in a series of Disney Channel Discoveries, high-quality films that offer entertainment for the entire family. "The Red Fury," set at the turn of the century, is a tale of how love, friendship, and compassion can triumph over the forces of prejudice and ignorance.

Presenting a Treasury of Fine Family Films

"They don't make movies like they used to" is a commonly-heard lament these days. Yet as we reported in our last issue, that statement isn't true. They do make films like they used to — and in its ongoing quest to acquire the finest family entertainment available, The Disney Channel has unearthed a number of extraordinary movies that offer not only high-quality entertainment but positive values as well. Each of these cinematic gems is a "Disney Channel Discovery," and the first film in this truly unique series, "The Red Fury," premieres October 5 at 9:00 p.m. (EDT/PDT).

"The Red Fury" is a picture-perfect example of The Disney Channel philosophy of family entertainment. The film was produced by Lyman Dayton, whose "Where the Red Fern Grows" was a highly-acclaimed picture that won the "Parents" Magazine Citation and the Motion Picture Association Award for its excellence.

"A family film should be just that," Dayton says, "a motion picture about real people and real experiences that an entire family can enjoy together. Too much of our entertainment has been fragmented, with older people going to their own movies. A quality family film should be one which provides entertainment for everyone, be they teenager, single, or senior citizen."

"The Red Fury" is just such a family film. Set at the turn of the century, the movie focuses on the relationship established between a young Indian boy and a horse trainer who has lost his wife and child. The man celebrates their friendship — and their growing dependency upon each other — by giving Frankie, the boy, a magnificent gift, the prized stallion Red Fury. But in doing so he exposes the boy to the blind prejudice and ignorance of the white community they live in.

The film presents an honest and searing examination of the effects of that prejudice and hate. It also offers a deeply moving portrait of individuals who overcome those baleful influences through love, compassion, and understanding. "The Red Fury" is a stunning film — a classic example of the Hollywood "sleeper" which, though it may not have received a great deal of critical attention upon its release, offers incomparable quality entertainment.

That's the great thing about a "Disney Channel Discovery." These movies don't always feature stellar names or 20 million dollars of "special effects" or splashes of blood and violence. In "The Red Fury" you won't recognize the actors' names; you will recognize their faces. They're veterans who have been drawn to well-written roles, roles that are in many cases an actor's dream. The joy and commitment these players exhibit in performing in such a film add to its lustrous qualities.

"The Red Fury" is just the first in a remarkable line-up. In the months ahead, there will be more films that share its quality and values. Coming up is "A Billion for Boris," which stars actress Lee Grant and a young Tim Kazurinsky. It's about three kids who fix an old TV set and discover that it can foretell the future. "A Billion for Boris" is an entertaining movie with a message.

We're also proud to present "Charlie Smith and the Fritter Tree." It's the true story of Charlie Smith, who was sold into slavery in the 1850s, and of the rest of his life up until his death at the age of 134. It's an acclaimed program that draws a sensitive and gripping portrait of a man and a changing nation.

Another Disney Channel Discovery is "The Quest." Starring Henry Thomas, from "E.T.," it's an adventure tale about a young American lad in Australia.

They do make movies like they used to. And The Disney Channel is committed to discovering these excellent feature films and presenting them to our subscribers. Beginning with "The Red Fury," we're proud to offer this series of little gems that will entertain, educate, and delight every member of your family. ♥

By the year 2000, 2 out of 3 Americans could be illiterate.

Read that again, just to be sure you read it correctly.

Because, believe it or not, it's true.

Even today, about one American adult in three can't read adequately. And, each year that goes by, reading skills continue to decline while the standards for literacy keep rising. By the year 2000, Americans will need greater reading skills than ever before, but fewer Americans will have them. If these trends continue unchecked for two decades, U.S. News & World Report envisions an America with a literacy rate of only 30%. Which means that the average person with three grandchildren could find that two of them are considered illiterate.

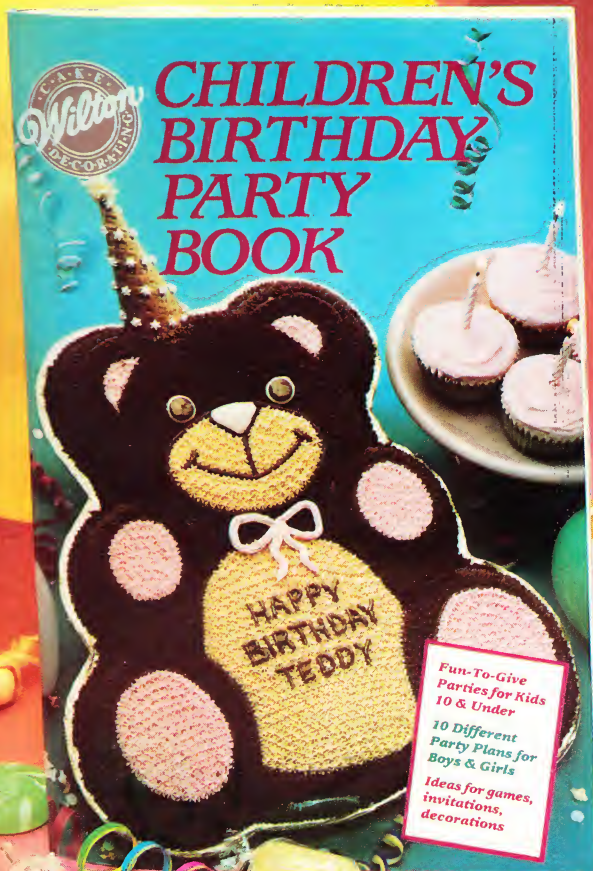

Before that America comes to be, you can stop it by joining the fight against illiteracy today. It takes no special qualifications. If you can read, you can tutor or help us in countless other ways. You'll be trained to work in programs right in your own community, sharing the satisfaction of seeing people learning and growing. And you'll know that you're not just helping them but their children and grandchildren, too. Because you're stopping illiteracy before it reaches them.

So join the effort. Call the Coalition for Literacy toll-free 800-228-8813. You'll be fighting illiteracy for generations to come.

Very Early

When I wake in the early mist
The sun has hardly shown
And everything is still asleep
And I'm awake alone.
The stars are faint and flickering.
The sun is new and shy.
And all the world sleeps quietly,
Except the sun and I.
And then begging noises start,
The whirrs and huffs and hums,
The birds peep out to find a worm,
The mice squeak out for crumbs.
The calf moos out to find the cows
And taste the morning air.
And everything is wide awake
And running everywhere.
The dew has dried,
The fields are warm,
The day is loud and bright.
And I'm the one who woke
the sun
And kissed the stars goodnight.

Outer Space

I really do like all your shows.
One time in school the subject in science was outer space. I knew

Emily's Poem

I am the footsteps of a baby lamb walking on wet sand.
I am the hopping of a bunny in the field.
I am the thunder crashing.
I am the white fluffiness of a cloud.
I am the coldness of snow falling.
I am the rays of sunlight falling to the ground.
I am the darkness of a black cloud.
I am the swaying of the wheat in
the field.
I am the hot summery days.
I am the wings spread out from birds.
I am the happiness of a Birthday party.
I am the swaying of a kite.
I am the bugs flying all around.
I am the building of a house.
I am the light of the lantern.
I am the taste of fresh-baked loaf of bread.
I am the color of a bright flower.
I am the bear growling in the spring wind.
I am the rain falling in the night.
I am the falling of a leaf.

Find It In the Library

Five movies coming up on The Disney Channel are based on books that are classics. The adventures in these books have entertained young readers generation after generation. Pinocchio is based on the book of the same name, written by C. Collodi. He wrote it in Italian first as a series in a popular Italian magazine. It was later turned into a book, translated into English, and was an instant success.

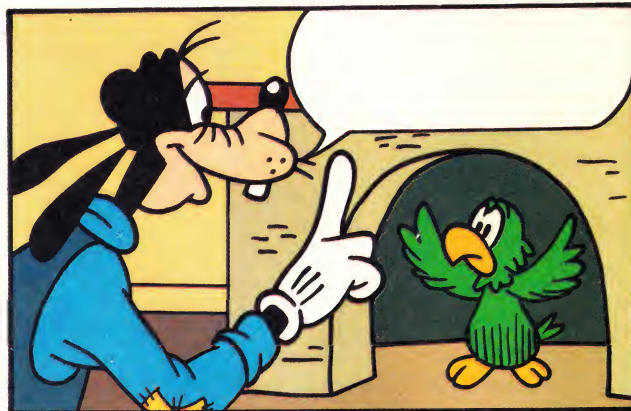

Tom Sawyer is adapted from Mark Twain's novel "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," based on his own mischievous boyhood in Missouri.

Lt. Robin Crusoe, U.S.N. is a modern-day comedy version of Daniel Defoe's "The Life and Adventures of Robinson Crusoe."

The great English storyteller Charles Dickens is represented by Oliver!, adapted from his novel "Oliver Twist," and Great Expectations, based on his novel by the same name.

The books of Defoe and Dickens will appeal to advanced readers.

NAME THESE DISNEY FELINE FILM STARS

Were you able to name last month's cool cats? Well, here are six more for you to identify. See how you do this time.

ANSWERS A. Lilly (Lady and the Tramp) F. Prince John (Robin Hood) E. Si and Am (The Aristocats) D. Shere Khan (The Jungle Book) C. Thomas O'Malley (The Cat in the Hat) B. Tigger (Winnie the Pooh)

MAKE PINOCCHIO COME TO LIFE!

Needed:
cardboard glue paper fasteners
2 popsicle sticks or pencils

To make Pinocchio, glue this page to a piece of cardboard. (A file folder works well.) After the glue has dried, cut out the pieces and punch holes where indicated. Next, fasten Pinocchio's arms, legs and head to his body with paper fasteners. Thread strings through the holes in Pinocchio's hands and at the top of his head. Tie the other ends of the strings to a popsicle stick or a pencil. Adjust the length of the strings. Then thread strings through the holes in his feet and attach them to another popsicle stick. Wiggle the sticks to make Pinocchio move, then sing "When You Wish Upon A Star" with Jiminy Cricket and wait to see if the Blue Fairy will make your own dream come true.

SOME GOOD ADVICE FROM WINNIE THE POOH AND JIMINY CRICKET

The Disney Channel's "Too Smart for Strangers" and "I'm No Fool With Electricity" are devoted to the safety of kids.

From time to time we will devote a page of "Just for Kids" to providing you with information on health and safety issues. (Parents can add to their child's understanding of the subjects discussed by offering additional guidance and their own suggestions.)

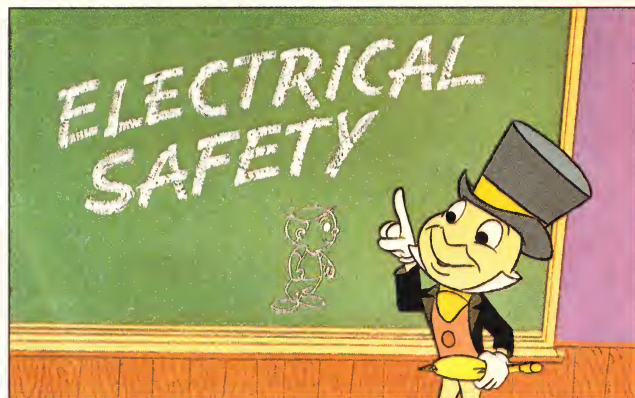

TOO SMART FOR STRANGERS

"Too Smart for Strangers" encores on on The Disney Channel in September. It offers specific suggestions on how to protect yourself against strangers, since parents can't be with you at every moment. Here are a few suggestions to follow so that you can have fun and worry less:

- Always tell one of your parents where you are going, with whom and when you will be back.
- Avoid unsafe places, such as empty houses, vacant lots, back streets and alleys.
- Stay a healthy distance from any stranger. It's not unfriendly. It's wise. You can be friendly with people you know.
- Have a friend go with you to a public restroom or a park.
- Never tell a stranger your name, phone number, or address. And don't let a stranger take your picture.
- Know who is picking you up at school or at other places.
- Be on guard against any tricks a person could play on you.
- If you are at home alone and you answer the phone, do not tell the caller that you are alone. Just say, "My Mom (or Dad) can't come to the phone now. May I take a message."
- Lock the doors when you are alone, and do not open them to a stranger for any reason.
- If you need help, call a neighbor you trust.
- Tell one of your parents if anything "bad" happens to you.

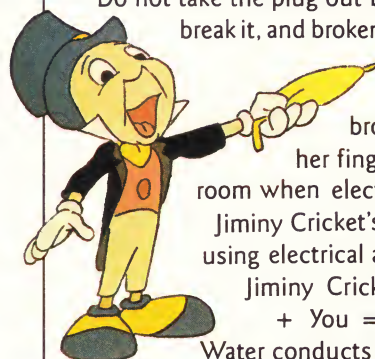

It's wise to be wary. Don't play alone and travel in pairs, especially to public restrooms and parks.

Jiminy Cricket has been appearing on The Disney Channel recently giving safety tips on a different subject: electricity. Jiminy Cricket has been giving good advice for many years, ever since he helped Pinocchio learn right from wrong. And he is well worth listening to. Here is what he has to say about electricity.

- If an area or an object is marked "Danger High Voltage," do not play nearby. Find a safe place to play.
- Stay away from any fallen wires. All wires are dangerous.
- Do not stick objects in an electrical outlet. They are only for plugs. And plugs should be pushed all the way in.
- Do not take the plug out by pulling the cord. You might break it, and broken wires can start fires.

- Always keep a bulb in the light socket so that a younger brother or sister can't put his or her finger into it.
- Do not leave your room when electrical toys are running.

Jiminy Cricket's strongest warnings are about using electrical appliances near water.

Jiminy Cricket says: "Water + Electricity + You = An Accident."

Water conducts electricity so efficiently that if you are handling an electrical appliance and standing in even a tiny puddle of water, you could get a jolt or worse. It is important to keep all electrical appliances away from pools, bathtubs and sinks.

We can't see electricity itself (except for lightning), but we see the appliances that are powered by electricity. We are always turning on a switch to operate something. But remember that you must use that power with respect in order to avoid fires, injuries, and shocks. As Jiminy says: "Electricity works hard for you so don't treat it lightly." 🐜

BOOK COVERS FROM THE DISNEY CHANNEL

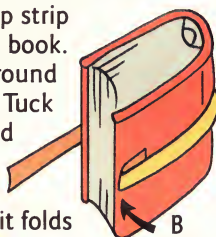

What follows may at first seem to be complicated directions, but if you follow them step by step, your book cover will fit well and protect your book for a long time.

1. Cut a grocery bag open so it's flat.

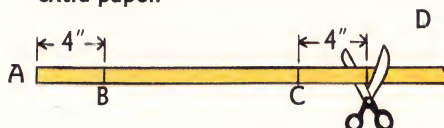

2. Cut a long (about 30 inches), 2-inch-wide strip of paper. Mark the left end of the strip "A." (This strip will be used to measure the size of the book cover.)

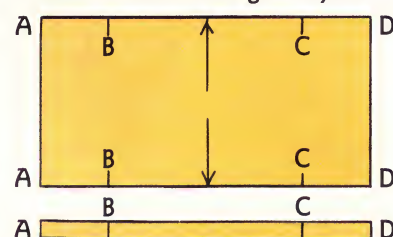

3. Measure 4 inches from point "A" and mark point "B." Fold at point "B" and paper clip strip to an edge of the book. Wrap the strip around the book snugly. Tuck the remaining end of the strip inside the book and mark where it folds over the edge of the book as point "C." Remove the strip, flatten it and measure and mark point "D" 4 inches to the right of point "C." Cut off extra paper.

4. Using the strip as a marker, cut a piece of paper bag as long as the strip and as wide as the height of your book. Mark the paper at points "B" and "C," as you did on the strip.

5. Open your book and place it flat with the cover side down. Fold one edge of the paper to the inside back cover of the book, lining up the book's edge with point "C" on the paper. Tape. Repeat with point "B" on the other side of the book.

6. Decorate by cutting out and gluing on these pictures, or drawing your own designs.

THE WONDERFUL WORLD OF COMPUTERS

From learning math to creating comics, computer software offers you a wide array of facts and fun.

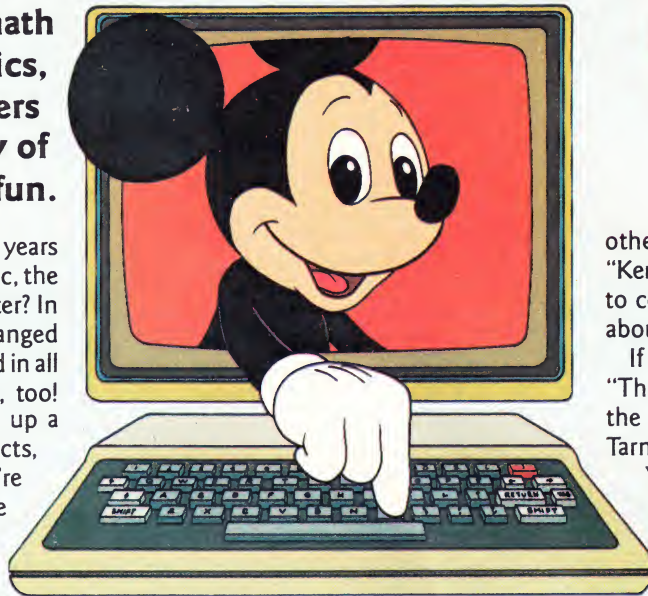

Did you know that it was only 41 years ago that scientists assembled Eniac, the first electronic high speed computer? In those 41 years computers have changed our lives. Computers are now found in all walks of life—and in your home, too!

Home computers have opened up a magical new world of fun and facts, learning and entertainment. They're something the whole family can use to grow by. And while you use computers to learn math in a game like "Algeblasters," or create your own comic strips with the brand new "Walt Disney Comic Strip Maker," you're discovering how computers work. You're becoming computer fluent—learning a new language that everybody will speak in the future.

But how do you learn computer skills if you don't know anything about them? You learn by doing—which is easier than you think.

Your computer is a piece of hardware—a tool just like a hammer or a saw. But what makes computers work is a computer program, or software. When you play a game like "Winnie The Pooh in The Hundred Acre Wood," you're using a piece of software.

There are many different types of personal computers, from Apples to Commodores to IBMs. Most software comes in different forms—you just purchase the software that goes with the type of computer you're using. (It's compatible with that machine). Let's take a look at some of the different software that's available for kids.

"Winnie The Pooh in The Hundred Acre Wood" is a good example of software that teaches and entertains at the same time. It's designed for kids who are in grades 2 to 5. You join Pooh in The Hundred Acre Wood to search for ten things the Blustery Wind has carried away. While you meet Tigger and the gang you'll also learn about directions and what they mean. (What does North mean, really?). It also sharpens your reading skills so you can read about Pooh's other adventures in his books. Or take "Kermit's Electronic Storymaker" You get to complete sentences that tell a story about Kermit the Frog.

If you're older, there are fun games like "The Black Cauldron," which is just like the Disney classic cartoon. You direct Tarn in his rescue of the magic pig Hen Wen. Or try "Perplexing Puzzles," which is chock full of mysteries.

If your older brother or sister hates geography, he or she will love "Where In The World Is Carmen San Diego?" You have to learn all about world geography, because you're searching for an international thief who is part of the shady Carmen San Diego gang. If outer space is the ticket, try Disney's "Galactic Prospector" and blast off in search of energy supplies. Have you ever tried to mine uranium on another planet?

Computers are magic! They can teach you things, help you with your school work, and provide hours of fun. The computer skills you learn playing these software programs will be useful all your life. Which is why we're going to tell you even more about the magic world of computers in the months to come. We'll cover A to Z on the subject, and look at really neat software for the whole family. ♡

Just for Kids

PINOCCHIO

When Pinocchio changes from a wooden puppet into a living puppet, he's a happy-go-lucky little guy who doesn't know right from wrong. Jiminy Cricket, as his official conscience, helps him out. But to be a real boy, Pinocchio has to develop his own conscience.

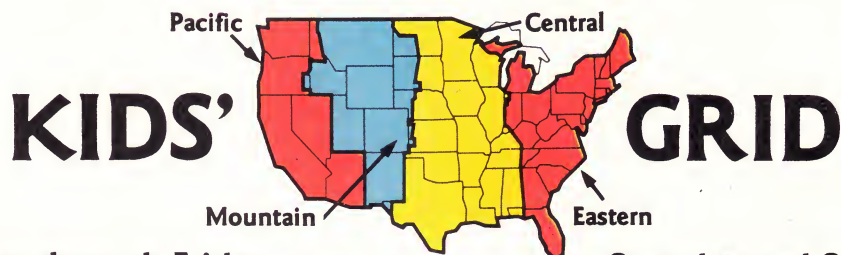

TOM SAWYER

He's a real boy, alright, but he doesn't always know right from wrong. Or he forgets. Aunt Polly is usually around to set him straight. But he mainly learns life's lessons the hard way—through his own adventures, which frequently get him into big trouble.

A BOY NAMED CHARLIE BROWN

Charlie Brown is a different kind of guy. Knowing right from wrong is not his problem. It's just that nothing seems to go his way. He's not exactly the cool guy on the block. In fact, Lucy frequently yells, "Hey, Blockhead." You can't help but feel sorry for him. Life is tough.

LT. ROBIN CRUSOE, U.S.N.

A Navy pilot, forced to bail out of his plane, struggles to safety on a deserted island and builds a makeshift shelter. He thinks he's alone until he discovers a companion — a NASA chimpanzee named Floyd. Then he meets another human — a native girl who has been exiled to the island by her tribal-chief father while he prepares her wedding.

You can imagine the complications, as Dick Van Dyke plays the role of this modern-day comic Robinson Crusoe.

OLIVER!

Winner of six Academy Awards, "Oliver!" is Sir Carol Reed's stunning musical version of Dickens' immortal tale, "Oliver Twist." Mark Lester plays the young Oliver, a boy who is swept into a gang of child thieves led by the evil Fagin (brilliantly portrayed by Ron Moody). The sensational cast also includes a brooding Oliver Reed and the delightful Shani Wallace. The excellent score, which includes such numbers as "Consider Yourself" and "As Long as He Needs Me," is matched by atmospheric sets. "Oliver!" is a first-rate film experience. Sept. 21, 23, 27; Oct. 8, 13, 17, 23

But John's gift arouses the anger of a neighbor, exposing Frankie and Handley's friendship to the prejudice and ignorance of the whites in their town.

THE LIFE AND DEATH OF COLONEL BLIMP

This stunning film has long been considered a classic of English filmmaking. It's the story of a stalwart British officer who in his last days (during World War II) recalls the battles and the loves of his life. Deborah Kerr gives a superb performance as she portrays three different women—the women in the Colonel's life whom he loved, wooed, and lost.

Mike the Dog makes his debut as a leading man in this charming adventure-comedy. When Ross, a bank robber, and his two henchmen are chased by the police after pulling a heist, he hits upon an ingenious solution: give the loot to his dog Capone to bury. But Ross ends up captured and Capone goes to the pound, where he's adopted by young Ken (Barret Oliver) and renamed Astro. Ken soon discovers "Astro's" shady past and sets out in search of the stolen money, just as Ross breaks out of jail to look for his missing pet.

Rather than fight tyranny openly, Diego decides to remain passive, but in secret to ride masked, defending the people against Monasterio. Diego is assisted by his mute servant Bernardo.

The cloaked and masked swordsman Zorro (Guy Williams) has been a favorite ever since he first appeared on television. Now the entire series, which began September 19, will continue each Friday at 7:30 p.m. (EDT/PDT).

JEAN SHEPHERD'S "PHANTOM OF THE OPEN HEARTH"

Alternating between the cynical and the sentimental, the subject of Jean Shepherd's humor is "growing up," specifically growing up in the Midwest during the '40s. In "Phantom of the Open Hearth," young Ralph faces up to one of life's greatest challenges: the dreaded Junior Prom.

Jean Shepherd's "Phantom of the Open Hearth" has been selected for our mature viewers and will air only after 9:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time). Parental discretion is advised.

DANGER BAY

Set in the rugged and glorious Pacific Northwest, this action-packed series, which is seen every Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. (EDT/PDT), follows the thrilling adventures of "Doc" Roberts, curator of marine mammals at the Vancouver Aquarium, and his two children Jonah and Nicole who act as his eager assistants.

All three are deeply involved in Aquarium activities, rescuing animals in distress, solving wildlife problems, and sometimes encountering unexpected danger along the way, as in this week's episode when "Doc" races to find the rabid dog who bit Nicole. The dog is played by Mike, who stars in "Spot Marks the X" (see page 35).

SAIL TO GLORY

In 1851 a crew of American yachtsmen defeated England's finest in a match race held off the Isle of Wight. Their vessel was the America, and the trophy cup was christened the America's Cup in honor of their victory. That first race of yachting's most venerated competition is recreated in this thrilling documentary.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST ATHLETE

Coach Sam Archer of Merrivale College (John Amos) and his bumbling assistant have a big problem: they're losers. They're losers, that is, until the two take a safari to Africa where they meet Nanu (Jan-Michael Vincent) a boy whose jungle childhood has made him "The World's Greatest Athlete." When Nanu leaves the jungle for Merrivale, the stage is set for a series of way-out adventures in this Disney Channel exclusive premiere.

MERRY ANDREW

Danny Kaye is a stuffy English archeologist-teacher whose hunt for an ancient statue is sidetracked after he indulges his whim for circus life. He joins a traveling circus, and soon finds that archeology is less intriguing than the charms of a beautiful performer (Pier Angeli) in this musical comedy.

Their new life, new friends and new campus activities haven't changed them, though. They're still the super-sleuths they always were. NEWS FROM THE PARKS

Michael Eisner, Chairman of The Walt Disney Company, has announced plans to construct Pleasure Island, a six-acre entertainment complex at Walt Disney World in Florida. The attraction will feature six nightclubs: the Adventurer's Club, the Zephyr RockinRolladrome, the Mannequin Dance Theater, the Comedy Warehouse, the Videopolis Cafe, and Bloom's Jazz Garden, as well as a number of restaurants. It was designed by Walt Disney Imagineering.

Friday, September 19 marks the long-awaited opening of Captain EO presented by Kodak at Disneyland and Walt Disney World. The revolutionary 3-D short is a space fantasy-musical directed by Francis Coppola and produced by Rusty Lemorande. The executive producer was George Lucas. It stars Michael Jackson as an interstellar knight-errant. Jackson also composed the film's music and songs. To celebrate the opening—and to accommodate eager guests—the "Magic Eye Theater" will be open continuously from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. from September 19 through September 23—a first for both parks.

Later this Fall, Disney Channel subscribers will get a behind-the-scenes look at the making of "Captain EO".

Big Thunder Ranch, which opened in Disneyland this past June, is modeled on a working horse ranch of the 1880s. The attraction features a ranch house, blacksmith's and tack shops, horses and wild burros. The burros are a temporary feature of Big Thunder Ranch—they actually belong to the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Land Management. All burros are currently available for adoption. The transaction, which involves a $75 processing fee, is conducted entirely between the adopting party and the Bureau. So if you're at Big Thunder Ranch and one of these symbols of our vanishing frontier catches your eye, that animal can be yours.

Wild Burros at Disneyland are currently available for adoption.

capacity. And never with a dog this talented."

To young moviegoers, Don Ameche is the distinguished old actor who won an Oscar for his performance in Ron Howard's film "Cocoon" and who, prior to that feature, appeared in the Eddie Murphy-Dan Aykroyd comedy "Trading Places." While Ameche's career has enjoyed something of a second spring, one shouldn't forget that he was a distinguished actor and matinee idol in the '30s and '40s. Subscribers can see the young Ameche in the splashy musical,

"Down Argentine Way" (see page 27), which also stars Betty Grable and Carmen Miranda.

Jane Seymour, the beautiful English actress, appears on The Channel in "Sinbad and the Eye of the Tiger." Seymour played a different role this past July, however, when she covered the royal wedding as a special correspondent for "Good Morning America."

"I have a whole new career," Seymour said of her experience. "It was something I've always wondered about and have been intrigued by."

Anglophiles will be delighted with two classic

English films, David Lean's masterful adaptation of Dickens' "Great Expectations" and the comedy "The Horse's Mouth." Both feature Sir Alec Guinness, who won acclaim of a different sort this spring with the publication of his memoir "Blessings in Disguise."* In the book's foreword, entitled "Stage Directions," Sir Alec offered his own description of an actor:

"An actor is an interpreter of other men's words, often a soul which wishes to reveal itself to the world but dare not, a craftsman, a bag of tricks, a vanity bag, a cool observer of mankind, a child, and at his best a sort of unfrocked priest who, for an hour or two, can call on heaven or hell to mesmerize a group of innocents."

STUDIO UPDATE

Preliminary work is now under way on The Walt Disney Company's 27th animated feature film. Expected to be released a year from this Christmas, it's adapted from Charles Dickens' classic novel, "Oliver Twist." Like Disney's recent animated film "The Great Mouse Detective," it features animals in the roles. A call recently went out among company employees for interesting pets to act as models for the film's characters.

APPEARING ON THE CHANNEL

David Huddleston, who appears in "Spot Marks the X" (see page 10), is a veteran performer whose career spans 51 years and includes film appearances with Hollywood's greatest legends. About his co-star, Mike the Dog, Huddleston has only praise: "I've worked with dogs many times, but never in this Dave Smith, archivist for The Walt Disney Company, answers questions and provides information about the studio's history and its productions.

In what cartoon did Daisy's nieces, April, May, and June first appear?

—J.K., Riverdale, MD

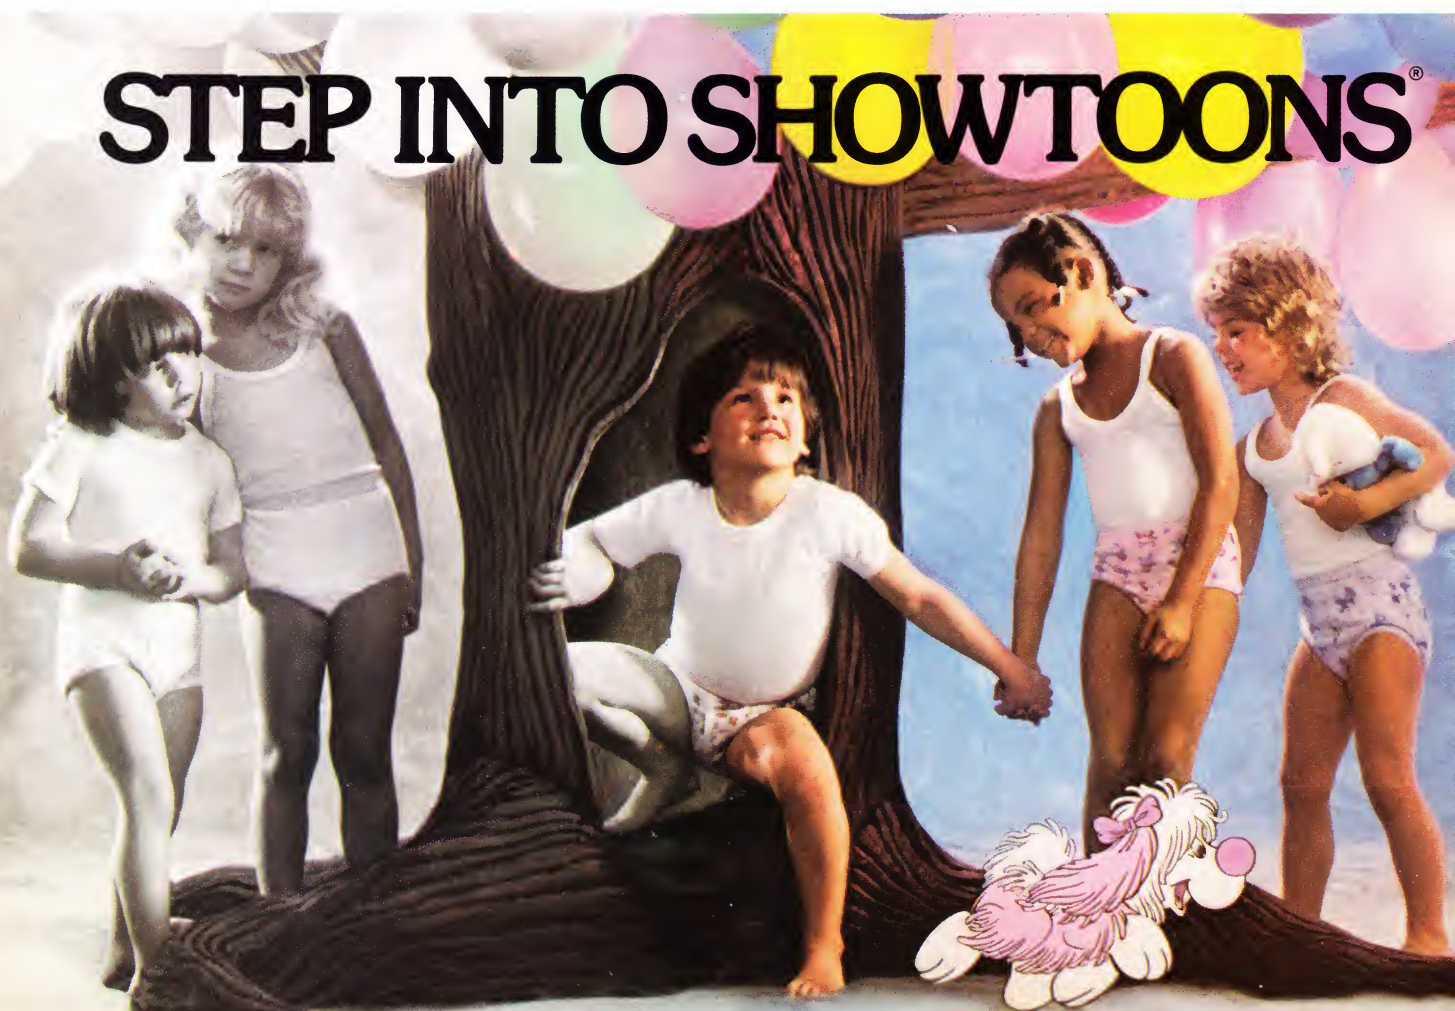

Daisy's nieces were characters in comic books; they never appeared in a cartoon. Their first appearance was in "Walt Disney's Comics & Stories," #149 (February, 1953).

I have some small figurines of Sleeping Beauty characters. Are they worth anything?—V.W., Miami, FL

The Sleeping Beauty figures you have were made by a California firm, Hagen-Renaker, at the time of the film's original release. They are very scarce today and the "Disneyana Catalog and Price Guide" lists them in fine condition for prices ranging from $60 (for each of the good fairies) to $475 (for Maleficent).

STEP INTO SHOWTOONS®

How can a collector identify fake Disneyana merchandise? I am leery of some items I have seen at flea markets.—L.S., Boca Raton, FL

The Disney lawyers are very active in going after copyright infringers, but sometimes unauthorized items slip through. The most common of these items currently surfacing are brass Mickey Mouse belt buckles and a door plate purporting to be from Disneyland's opening. There is really no hard and fast rule for identifying unauthorized Disney collectibles. The infringing manufacturers usually put as much fake authorization, such as dates and copyright notices, on pieces as they can.

Can you tell me something about Disney postage stamps I have seen recently?—J.A., Savannah, GA

The first Disney stamp was a 6¢ stamp issued by the United States in 1968 honoring Walt Disney. The tiny Republic of San Marino issued a set of ten stamps in 1971. Starting in 1979, the Intergovernmental Philatelic Corporation of New York was licensed by Disney to produce stamps on Disney films and related topics for a number of countries around the world. All these stamps should be available from your local stamp dealers.

Disney Channel Trivia

- For one scene in "The World's Greatest Athlete," in which a three-inch-tall Tim Conway falls into a lady's handbag, Disney propmakers fashioned a number of giant props. All the articles you'd expect to find in a purse were built to scale, including a jumbo lipstick, compact, hairpins, needle and thread, safety pins, reading glasses, comb and brush, pills, keys, and matches. In short, they were the contents of your average purse—except the items were 24 times normal size, weighed one ton, and cost over $15,000.
 - Can you name the three Disney characters who preferred their middle names and used only an initial for their first name?*
 - When you watch "Lt. Robin Crusoe, U.S.N.," see if you can figure out whose story idea the film was based on. Hint: Try reading the story credit backwards.
 - "Pinocchio" is regarded by many animation scholars as the most technically perfect of the Disney films. Made at a cost of $2.6 million in 1940, it would easily cost over $50 million to make the film today, using the same techniques and processes.
- You can imagine the tremendous size of the Disney animation staff in 1940, with both "Pinocchio" and "Fantasia" premiering during the same year.
- When young Joaquin Garay III came to the Disney Studio to play the role of Paco in "Herbie Goes Bananas," he was carrying on a family tradition. Thirty-five years earlier, his father, Joaquin Garay II, had provided the voice for the pistol-packin' rooster, Panchito, in Disney's "The Three Caballeros."
- *Answer—J. Audubon Woodlore, J. Worthington Foulfellow, J. Thaddeus Toad

PAUL McCARTNEY AND RUPERT THE BEAR

The Disney Channel audience may still think of Paul McCartney as one of the Beatles (younger viewers will know him as leader of the rock group Wings), but in England he has had a big musical success of a different sort. He and his wife Linda are the executive producers of, and Paul provides the voice and music for, his animated short, "Rupert and the Frog Song," which was the No. 1 selling music video of 1985 at the Music Week Awards in England.

When "Rupert and the Frog Song" premieres on The Disney Channel on September 20, Paul will be on hand to provide a special introduction to tell us about Rupert. Paul has been a fan of Rupert's since childhood.

Rupert the Bear is England's longest-lived comic character, having celebrated his 65th birthday last fall. He first appeared in the "Daily Express" on November 8, 1920. He was created by Mary Tourtel at the suggestion of her husband Herbert, night news editor of the "Daily Express," who was looking for a comic to compete with Teddy Tail in the "Daily Mail."

How are Paul and Rupert responding to their video success? Well, life for them continues as it had been. Rupert still appears daily in the "Daily Express." And Paul is still making records, with one released this summer. There are plans afoot for Paul and Rupert to join forces again, however: this time for a feature-length version of the bear's adventures. ♡

SHARI LEWIS HAS A STORY FOR YOU

You'd never catch Shari Lewis saying that books should be read and not heard. She loves all the old favorites, but believes that their telling can be brought up to date.

In the Shari Lewis special, "Have I Got a Story For You," premiering on The Disney Channel October 7, she has brought 12 of her favorite fairy tales up to date, alright. She does "Little Red Riding Hood" in rock-video fashion. "The way Michael Jackson might have done it," she says.

When The Disney Channel talked with Shari recently, she discussed her attitude toward classic stories:

"In today's world the old stories aren't necessarily worth passing on in the form they were written. They were written when people had nothing but time. There was little other entertainment.

"But the stories are important and worth passing on in some form. A child can learn about how people relate to one another. The stories contain basic material about people's fears and yearnings. They frequently have morals."

Shari Lewis is an entertainer, first and foremost. But she's also a writer (28 books) and a symphony conductor. Accomplishing all of this makes her somewhat of a time-study person as well.

"I used to sew and I like to budget my time like I used to lay out patterns on fabric." ♡

JOHN SEBASTIAN, THE AUTHOR

John Sebastian, the multi-talented entertainer, is featured at The Disney Channel's live concert at the 15th anniversary celebration of Walt Disney World and he'll star in the forthcoming musical special, "What a Day for a Daydream." But he's also making his bow as an author. After composing songs for "Sesame Street," "The Care Bears Movie" and other children's shows, Sebastian is turning to the printed page with a children's book based on stories his father used to tell him.

"My father (John Sebastian, Sr.) was a classical harmonica virtuoso. He recorded a children's album called 'J.B. and His Happy Harmonica' which was written about my childhood. He was very imaginative. He made up wonderful stories and I've never forgotten them," Sebastian says.

Hopefully, Sebastian's book will be illustrated by Garth Williams, whose drawings embellish "Charlotte's Web," "Stuart Little," and others. "I'm going to ask him," Sebastian promises. "After all, he's my godfather." ♡

©1986 Art affects, Ltd.

The legends and customs of America's Indians have long held a fascination for us all. They are a proud people who have great respect for nature and her animals, and who teach their children these same values.

In this fine porcelain, limited-edition plate, famed artist Gregory Perillo captures the kindred spirit between a young Blackfoot boy and a proud eagle. The exquisite detail in both subjects brings this plate painting to life—depicting the determination and strength these friends share.

Perillo is one of today's foremost Indian-subject artists and has devoted his life to the study, painting and sculpting of these native Americans. His breathtakingly realistic originals have earned sustained praise in the art market, and several of his previous offerings in the limited-edition plate field have seen prompt sell-outs and secondary market appreciation.

Now The Hamilton Collection is privileged to offer "Brave and Free," the first issue in The Pride of America's Indians Plate Collection—a series of eight plates, each depicting an Indian child from a different well-known tribe, along with an animal indigenous to that tribe's region. Already, "Brave and

BRAVE & FREE

Free" has seen prompt demand from collectors.

As an original issue owner, you will have the right to acquire all the plates as they are issued, but you will be under no obligation to purchase any further plates. Furthermore, under The Hamilton Collection 100% Buy-Back Guarantee, you may return any plate within 30 days of receipt for a full refund, releasing your series rights.

Each Pride of America's Indians plate will be hand-numbered and accompanied by a same-numbered Certificate of Authenticity. Priced at an affordable $24.50, the edition is strictly limited to just a 10-day firing period.

But remember—the popularity of Perillo's art and the appeal of this superb plate has resulted in immediate demand for "Brave and Free." So to assure yourself a position within the limited edition, send in your application form by the date shown. Better yet, order today!
